Information about Appealing Your Admission Decision

College of Design Transfer Admission Decision Overview:

Factors considered in the application review process include academic performance, grades in discipline-related courses, a career statement, and the applicant’s overall fit for the major. A minimum cumulative 2.80 GPA is preferred for all College of Design programs, however this does not guarantee admission. Additionally, please note that many College of Design programs have limited space due to the nature of the studio learning environment.
