“My CLA family is so different, and it’s so interesting. Who we are as people, our experiences, but also our disciplines and what we’re studying. I’ve had the best conversations in CLA, because we’re not all just coming from the same place.”

– Anjini, an economics major with minors in creative writing and statistics

Hub for Creativity

CLA is home to actors and photographers, dancers and painters, musicians and illustrators, writers and sculptors – all the creative arts! But you’ll see that innovation and creativity lie at the core of all our CLA majors. It’s just who we are.

Doing What Matters

At CLA, we're addressing the most pressing issues facing the world today. That's because we ask the big questions. It's also because our students, faculty, and staff are driven to do good for others, through our service, research, and careers.

Justice, Equity, Diversity, Inclusion

We strive to create a community where every member is regarded with respect and feels a sense of belonging.

Home of the MLK Program

One of the first of its kind in the country, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Program offers culturally-relevant academic advising, plus social justice events and cultural celebrations.

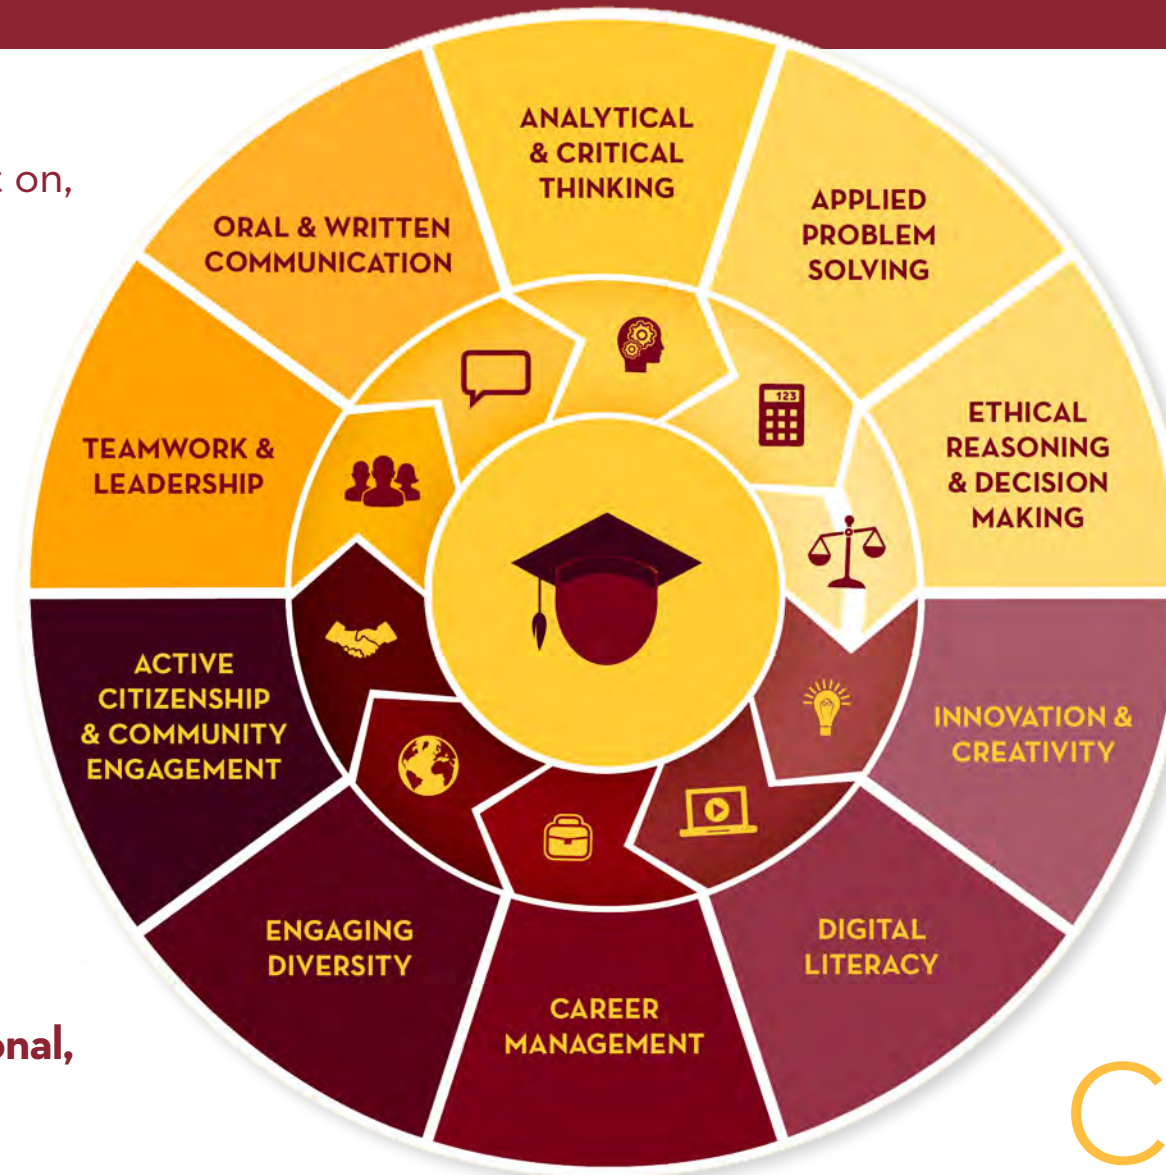

Leverage Your Liberal Arts Advantage

As a CLA student, you will develop, reflect on, and articulate these ten competencies that employers and alumni tell us matter most.

No matter which major you choose in CLA, your liberal arts courses combine so you can demonstrate gains in all ten of these areas.

These competencies give you a competitive edge that makes you stand out as a candidate for jobs and graduate programs.

The adaptability these competencies provide will position you for lasting success in your personal, public, and professional life.

“Employers today are looking for people who can solve problems, think inventively, communicate well, consider multiple and diverse perspectives, work nimbly, conduct research, analyze the past, understand the present, and imagine the future.”

— John Coleman, Dean of the College
